

AMENDMENT TO THE CLAIMS

IN THE CLAIMS:

Claims 1-4. (Canceled)

5. (New)

A conflict resolution method comprising the steps of:

receiving a plurality of potential client inquiries from members of an organization, said inquiries comprising party information and relationship information;

displaying all of said potential client inquiries to each member of said organization via a graphic user interface, said graphic user interface further displaying a conflict box adjacent to each of said plurality of potential conflict inquiries;

displaying a potential client inquiry comment screen upon said member checking at least one of said conflict boxes;

receiving inquiry response information relating to said potential client inquiry adjacent to the conflict box checked by said user; transmitting said inquiry response information to a requesting attorney associated with said potential client inquiry; and requiring each member of the organization to indicate that they have reviewed and commented on all potential client inquiries.

6. (New)

The method of claim 5, wherein said graphic user interface further comprises a completion button.

7. (New)

The method of claim 6, wherein said graphic user interface further comprises a certification notice adjacent to said completion button

8. (New)

The method of claim 7, wherein said certification notice informs each member that the act of clicking said completion button constitutes an affirmation to the organization that the member has reviewed all potential conflict inquiries and communicated any potential conflicts to the organization.
